

Bachelor of Science

Environmental Management

This degree combines elements of business and management with a strong background in science and environmental issues. It is offered in response to strong state and local government demand for management careers in the drinking water and wastewater industries and other environmental careers.

Courses include a subject matter in areas of biology, chemistry, math, environmental science and business. The Environmental Management curriculum is designed for students to begin at Bay College and complete the last three semesters at LSSU's Sault Ste. Marie campus.

Program Highlights

- Designed to expand the individual's technical education and management skills that could qualify students for industry advancement
- Personalized advising and assistance
- Experienced and caring faculty
